* Whiskey vs. Whisky:

The Scots, Canadians, and Japanese tend to prefer the spelling 'Whisky', while Americans and the Irish tend to favor 'Whiskey'.

We don't really care how it's spelled. We just care how it tastes.

Flights

All of Moo... 's flights consist of three 1/2-ounce pours

The Hebridean Hopper

30

Talisker 10 year, Carbost, Skye

Located on the northern island of Skye, Talisker is the only distiller on the island. The water source for the distillery wells up through layers of basalt left from the island's creation and imparts a variety of minerals giving it a distinct taste. This unique and elegant whisky has peat, sea air, and oranges on the nose with earthy, salty, peaty palate.

Ardbeg 10 year, Port Ellen, Islay

This historic distillery was first established in 1814. It was closed several times during its history and reopened in 1996. This dram has twice won World Whisky of the Year since the distillery re-opened. It is a sweet and smokey dram with notes of apple, ginger, cinnamon, caramelized pineapple and peat smoke.

Lagavulin 16 year, Port Ellen, Islay

Perhaps the most pungent of the all Islay malts, Lagavulin is not for the faint-hearted. Its peaty nose has hints of lapsang souchong tea, pipe tobacco, and fishboxes. The palate shows hint of kelp and touch of iodine, coming to a

The Balvenie

40

From growing (some) of their own barley, to owning and operating their own malthouse, to retaining a stable of their own craftsmen - including a coppersmith and a cooper who build and maintain all of their own stills and barrels - the Balvenie distillery is the last of its kind in the Scottish Highlands - a living, working memory of a bygone age of whisky artisanship.

Balvenie 14 year, 'Caribbean Cask', Rum Cask, Dufftown

A nose of dried fruits, overlaid with a gentle nuttiness. Rich on the tongue with elegant oak and spice, and a touch of briny salinity that carries through to the long, sherried finish.

Balvenie 17 year, 'Doublewood', Dufftown

Complex aromas of oak, vanilla and honey, along with a hint of green apple. Sweet to taste with dried fruit, sherbet, toasted almond, cinnamon and creamy toffee, as the same original notes of oak, vanilla, and spiced honey return to finish.

Balvenie 21 year, 'Portwood', Dufftown

A heady perfume of ripe raisins with a nutty backdrop. Markedly smooth in the mouth, the silky texture of fruit, honey and baking spice lingers through the finish, fading to a subtle nuttiness.

The Half-Century

500

Glenlivet 1940, 50 year, Ballindaloch

Florally fragrant, a nose of fresh cut flowers and some cinnamon spice alongside notes of strawberry, melon and orange, with hints of pepper and caramel. The taste is bold and liqueur-like, with unexpected notes of crystallized orange and tangerine candies. Finishes long and sweetly-savory, with blooming

Macallan 1951, 51 year, Craigellachie

Robust green apple notes dominate the entire profile, from the nose - along with lemon zest and a hint of cinnamon - through the palate - more lemon and mild peat - to the very finish, where it gives slow way to a drying, mossy smoke.

Mortlach 1939, 50 year, Dufftown

A rich brew of cherries, marzipan and honeycomb open the nose, with some sweet maltiness, black pepper and gingerbread. Silky-smooth on the tongue, with a touch of nitter wet wood, espresso, and dark chocolate. At the finish, the bitterness gives way to a return of sweet marzipan and some lingering sherry notes.

Flights

All of Mooo... 's flights consist of three 1/2-ounce pours

The Grand Macallan

110

Perhaps the most iconic of all of Scotch distilleries, Macallan has been producing world-renowned whisky off of their 'curiously small stills' - the smallest of their kind in the whole of Speyside - since 1824. Explore some of their rarer malts, both contemporary and historic.

Macallan 18 year, Craigellachie

A nose of citrus sprinkled with cinnamon, strong notes of sherry and wood smoke, which carries prominently through the palate. Mouthfeel is rich and weighty. Dried fruits emerge on the tongue and fade slowly into a very long finish of smoke and spice.

Macallan, Prime Malt 30 year, Craigellachie

A special bottling for Mooo... A slightly spicy nose with hints of orange peel, honey, and strong sherry overtones. Spicy and a touch prickly to the tongue, mellowed by flavors of sweet sherry, nuts, and traces of

Macallan 1988, 11 year, Craigellachie

Sweet citrus dominates the aromatics, along with honeyed notes of dried fruit and vanilla. The palate is fresh, clean and sharp, driven by lemon peel, ginger and sea salt. A peaty touch of burnt cake and lingering salted nuts carry out through the finish.

The All-American Whiskey Tour

Knob Creek, 9 year, Clermont, KY

Aged in highly-charred barrels and bottled at 100 proof, this Jim Beam-owned whisky is as big, bold and all-American as a Bourbon as it gets. Maple sugar, nuts and oak on the nose are joined by notes of caramel and fruit on the tongue, with a long, smooth finish, and just a bit of bite at the very end.

Oola 'Three Shores', Seattle, WA

Combines whiskeys from three different countries: a Highland Scotch, our own American high rye Whiskey, and a deep, rich and smooth Canadian Whiskey. A whiff of smoke coupled with sweet sea brine on the nose of three shores starts the conversation. Followed by a spicy clove and cinnamon note, contributing a complexity mid-palate on its way to a lingering finish of rich, ripe pear and candied stone fruit.

Berkshire Mountain Distillers Bourbon, Sheffield, MA

All products are handcrafted in small batches at the Berkshire's first legal distillery since prohibition. BMD is one of the founding members of the craft distiller movement. Smooth and balanced with bright notes of spicy rye, vanilla, and mature fruit. Lingering finish of caramel and toasted nutt. You can tell that there was some heart and soul put into this. Very smooth and delicate.
